Correspondence to Francis Ellingwood Abbot, radical theologian and editor of The Index. Francis Ellingwood Abbot (1836-1903) was a philosopher and theologian, best known as the founder of the Free Religious Association (1867), editor of the weekly publication The Index (1870-1880), and President of the National Liberal League (1876). After studying the works of Charles Darwin, Abbot dedicated his life to reconciling the perceived difference between scientific study and religious revelation. His Free Religious Association rejected all religious authority, and was considered extremely radical for the time. His criticisms of Protestantism and Roman Catholicism made Abbot a figure of national prominence, especially through the weekly publication of The Index. Abbot's radicalism made it difficult for him to find a steady career, although he did eventually find himself teaching at Harvard University—an appointment which was met with much backlash in the academic world.

Abbot spent his entire adult life championing his unique theory of "Free Religion," which attracted considerable attention and debate on both sides of the Atlantic. However, personal tragedy struck in 1892, when his wife Katie died suddenly. After spending the last decade of his life studying and writing, Abbot ended his own life at his wife's grave site on October 23, 1903.

As evidenced by the covers contained in this lot, Abbot carried on correspondence with many of the most prominent scientists, philosophers, and writers of his day. These include:

Charles Darwin (1809-1882), famed British scientist who helped to establish the modern understanding of evolution.

Charles Voysey (1828-1912), British theist who was condemned by the Privy Council for heterodoxy.

Frederick Maxse (1833-1900), British Royal Naval officer and radical political activist.

George Holyoake (1817-1906), British newspaper editor who coined the term "secularism" in 1851.

Annie Besant (1847-1933), British activist who was prominent in the National Secular Society.

Thomas Butler Gunn (1826-1904), British illustrator and newspaper correspondent during the Civil War.

Max Müller (1823-1900), German philologist and one of the founders of comparative religion.

Alan Greenwell (1824-1914), brother of British poet Dora Greenwell.

Eight of these covers are accompanied by photocopies of their original contents from the Harvard University Archives. The letters to Mr. Abbot, notably that from Charles Darwin (on his headed notepaper and revealing some of his own beliefs)) demonstrate the considerable attention he attracted from his contemporaries, and shed light on his radical religious beliefs.

All 10 covers are addressed to Abbot while he was editor of The Index; eight while the publication was based in Boston, and two to Toledo, Ohio. Based on the photocopied letters, the envelopes (including Darwin) appear to be addressed in the hand of the senders. A variety of frankings are represented, including adhesive stamps and postal stationery. Condition is generally F-VF; (Photo = ☐ 240)

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Additional images of collections can be viewed on our website at www.hrharmer.com

The following lots of state postal history, along with many postal history lots in other sections, are from the collection formed by David Lyman over the course of many decades and was delivered to us in over 100 cartons. He was relentless in his pursuit of obtaining cancels from as many of the towns in a particular state or territory as possible and achieved admirable success in the undertaking. He followed the same course in collection of foreign cancels as well and his collections of Canada, Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and many other countries offered in other parts of this sale are also a testament to his determination. It was the postmark, and not necessarily the cover, that was of prime interest and the collection shows that as condition sometimes takes on lesser importance and the 1000s of cut-out cancels sometimes incorporates a portion of the stamp. However, for the state postal historian, these lots are treasure troves of information and can supply new information on early and late dates or previously unrecorded towns or types. Viewing of these collections, whether in person or via the online scans, is highly recommended.

2641	☒ PHILOCLESIAN FAIR, MAY 20, 1835 a complete and well struck red rimless 33mm marking and manuscript "12½" rate on outer folded letter sheet addressed to New Brunswick (NJ), sending would likely have cost the sender 1 bit (½real=12½c), tone spot and light aging, an Extremely Fine strike on a Very Fine cover; the marking falls into the same class as the well-known "Beehive" of New Haven, Conn. A privately applied handstamp (not a postal cancel) for the Philoclesian Fair which was, most likely, one of a number of fairs organized in the 1830s for fundraising purposes (similar to but less organized than the Sanitary Fairs of the Civil War period). There was a "Philoclean Society", founded in 1825 at Rutgers Univ (New Brunswick NJ), as a literary society and also a "Philolexian Society", a literary and debate organization, founded at Columbia Univ in NY City in 1802; it is doubtful whether this marking is associated with either of these organizations. Aristophanes comedy „The Wasps“ features a character named "Philoclean" and there may be a connection for a theater-group fundraising effort but, in the end, the marking remains a mystery.	500

He was promoted to Sergeant Major of the same Company on July 31, 1861. On December 14, 1863 he was promoted to full Major/Assistant Adjutant General on his fathers' (Howell Cobb) staff. The senior Cobb was a distinguished American political figure. A southern Democrat, Cobb was a five-term member of the US House of Representatives and Speaker of the House from 1849 to 1851. He also served as the 40th Governor of Georgia (1851-53) and as a Secretary of the Treasury under President Buchanan (1857-1860). He is probably best known as one of the founders of the Confederacy, having served as the President of the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States. Cobb served for two weeks between the foundation of the Confederacy and the election of Jefferson Davis as its first President. As the Speaker of the Congress, he was provisional Head of State at this time. The "Gen Fry" referred to in the forwarding instructions was Gen Birkett Davenport Fry, an adventurer, soldier, lawyer, cotton manufacturer, and a Confederate brigadier general in the American Civil War. A survivor of four battle wounds, he commanded one of the lead brigades during Pickett's Charge at the Battle of Gettysburg. (Photo = 268)	250

3083	Luftschiff "Hindenburg" Napkin Holder , 4.5x10" napkin holder from the Hindenburg, named to "Herr Mills," made of deckle paper, vertical crease down center and staining (almost entirely on reverse), still Very Fine and extremely rare, one article notes that "upon boarding the ship, passengers were given a sturdy envelope containing a single napkin to last them the entire journey; odd as this seems, it was an attempt to conserve weight on a ship that needed to be lighter than air" (Photo =  326)	150
3084	Original Hindenburg Disaster Wire Photograph , approximately 10.5x13.5" of-the-period photograph of the Hindenburg partially engulfed in flames, appears to be glued to backing, "AP Wire Photo" imprint at right, reverse of frame reads "First photograph made of Hindenburg explosion, one of the great air tragedies of all time. From Graflex, Inc. exhibition 'Graflex Remembers,'" minor creases, a Very Fine piece of zeppelin memorabilia (Photo =  www)	50
3085	1936-37 Hindenburg News Wire Photographs , 9 photos (each approx. 7x9") showing the Hindenburg before and after the disaster, scenes include ground crew beneath the gondola, several photos of the airship grounded and in the air, three photos of the disaster itself, and two photos of the wreckage on the ground in Lakehurst, most stamped "Associated Press" on reverse and many with explanatory notes attached, few with minor creases or water damage, still a Very Fine group, most appear to have been printed in 1937 following the crash (Photo =  326)	150
3086	Graf Zeppelin Ephemera Collection , small collection including Art Deco "Graf Zeppelin" soda bottle, five pins and badges (incl. 1929 World Flight and 1933 Chicago Flight), several Eckener commemorative "coins," "Around the World With the Graf Zeppelin" card game, Graf Zeppelin ball-in-hole dexterity game (appears post-WWII), and small vial of Tydol/Veedol advertising the product's use on the Graf Zeppelin; most items appear to be of-the-period but almost certainly a few reproductions so inspect with care, Very Fine, a fun and attractive grouping (Photo =  326)	100
3087	British Airship R.100 Fabri , 110x85mm fragment of outer skin which shows some "use", Fine piece of collateral of this vessel which made a double crossing of the Atlantic before being dismantled; guarantee handstamp on back and accompanied by a presentation card with an airship-shaped piece (46x10mm) of the R.100 mounted on card (Photo =  326)	50
